

Import tariffs on 10kV busbars

Article Overview

Copper busbars for electrical distribution at 10kV are generally classified under HTSUS 8536.69.8000 or 8537.10.9170, with a base U.S. duty rate of 2.7% ad valorem, subject to additional tariffs depending on country of origin.

HTS Classification

For copper busbars designed for electrical connections in high-voltage systems:

- HTSUS 8536.69.8000 covers “Electrical apparatus for making connections to or in electrical circuits... Other” and applies to busbars that are formed, bent, or welded for specific applications but are not mounted on panels or cabinets .
- HTSUS 8537.10.9170 applies to busbar assemblies mounted on boards, panels, or cabinets for electric control or distribution, with a voltage not exceeding 1,000 V. While this subheading is for lower-voltage assemblies, the classification may vary depending on whether the busbar is part of a pre-assembled distribution panel . For 10kV busbars, which exceed 1,000 V, classification may require consultation with CBP or a customs broker to ensure proper HTS assignment, as voltage rating can affect the subheading.

Duty Rates

- The general U.S. duty rate for copper busbars under these HTS codes is 2.7% ad valorem .
- Additional tariffs may apply for products originating from certain countries, such as China, under Section 301 trade actions. These tariffs have been imposed in stages s...
