

Price of anti-sway cable tray brackets

Article Overview

Anti-sway or seismic bracing brackets for cable trays typically range from $0.60 per unit to $50-$100 per kit, depending on material, type, and supplier.

Pricing Overview

- Individual Brackets: High-quality galvanized or stainless steel cable tray brackets can cost around $0.60 per unit when purchased individually, often with minimum order requirements for wholesale suppliers like Alibaba .
- Seismic/Anti-Sway Kits: Complete kits designed for anti-sway or seismic bracing, such as those from Legrand, include all necessary components for stabilizing long cable tray runs. These kits are more expensive, generally ranging from $50 to $100 per kit, depending on the number of brackets, rods, and fittings included .
- Specialty Brackets: Stand-off, G-hanger, and trapeze support brackets from suppliers like Direct Channel are made from pre-galvanized or stainless steel and are priced individually. For example, a 75mm stand-off bracket or a 100mm G-hanger may cost $10-$20 per piece, reflecting their heavy-duty construction and corrosion resistance .

Factors Affecting Price

- Material: Stainless steel (A316/A4) and hot-dipped galvanized steel are more expensive than standard pre-galvanized steel due to durability and corrosion resistance .
- Bracket Type: Anti-sway or seismic-specific brackets often include additional components like threaded rods, pre-drilled tabs, and connectors, which increase cost .
