

Relocation and Remodeling of Distribution Box

Article Overview

Modern solutions for distribution box relocation and remodeling include retrofit panelboards, consumer unit relocators, and modular distribution boxes that minimize downtime, ensure safety, and comply with current electrical standards.

Residential Solutions

For domestic dwellings, consumer unit relocation kits like the Wiska Consumer Unit Relocator (CUR) provide a compact and ready-to-install solution. These kits include WAGO Conductor DIN-rail terminals with lever and push-in connections, allowing safe and efficient relocation of the consumer unit without extensive rewiring or wall demolition. The enclosure dimensions (215x200x95mm) are designed to fit typical domestic spaces, and the system supports multiple connectors for power distribution, ensuring compliance with safety standards while simplifying installation .

Retrofit and Remodeling Solutions

For both residential and commercial applications, Eaton's Pow-R-Line 1R and 2R renovation panelboards allow upgrading worn or outdated circuit breakers while using existing panelboard boxes, conduits, and cables. These panels feature a depth adjustment mechanism with integrated trim assembly, enabling fast mounting into existing enclosures. This approach eliminates the need for wall demolition, reduces labor, and allows the introduction of ground fault and arc fault circuit interrupters. It also provides flexibility for future load growth and system modifications . Similarly,...
